

Freelance Programme Facilitator - Open Call

Are you passionate about working with young people?

We're looking for Freelancers that are passionate about working with young people to join Unloc's Freelancer Network and support the delivery of our programmes and events as a Freelance Programme Facilitator on an ad-hoc basis. Unloc is a leading education non-profit, supporting over 10,000 young people each year through our variety of in-school and college programmes on entrepreneurship, leadership, careers and student voice.

Our programme facilitators are our front line team, delivering innovative and exciting programmes with young people across our network of schools, colleges, businesses and community settings. Freelance facilitators will play an increasingly important role in the organisation moving forward, as we manage the peaks and troughs in demand for our programmes in schools, colleges and communities.

We would be particularly keen to hear from freelancers that have worked with young people in the past, in an informal or formal setting, with a background or experience in any of the following areas:

- Employability Skills
- Leadership Skills
- Entrepreneurship
- Student Voice / Co-Production
- Debating Skills
- Youth Consultation
- Self-Employment
- Public Speaking

About Unloc

Unloc is a leading education non profit founded in 2013 by award-winning young leaders and advocates Hayden Taylor and Ben Dowling. We help schools, colleges and organisations inspire and empower young people to be changemakers through bespoke and innovative programmes in entrepreneurship, leadership, career pathways and student voice. We work towards our mission by delivering inspiring educational programmes in our growing network of schools and colleges.

Our mission is to empower young people to be innovative changemakers who seek to build stronger communities and sustainable businesses. We develop young people's skills, enhance their potential and boost their determination to succeed.
